

Abstract:

The invention describes an ash collector for smokers, which is characterized by a bar-shaped container with an opening on one end that is closed by a removable closure body which consists, in full or predominantly, of a material resistant to the glowing ash or cigarettes of cigars.